Along the way Susan and her husband had four children. She continued to knit every spare moment she could find. As a young mother she retired from teaching public school in 1996 and started designing knitwear mainly for children and babies with some good local success. In 2004 she got a book deal for the first of her six knitting books published through Artisan Books. Susan's publisher suggested that she use her middle initial to spruce up her somewhat common name.
